SENATOR CHARLES KNIGHT.

Senator Charles H. Knight, of the Thirty-sixth Senatorial district, will again be a candidate for the Democratic nomination and in all probability will have no opposition, as his record in the upper house entitles him to that recognition. From a Democratic standpoint this is a pleasing prospect, as Senator Knight will add strength to the ticket in the November election. Since his entrance into local politics there has never been a campaign that Senator Knight did not get into the thick of the fray as an active worker about the headquarters, working early and late for success. This if nothing else has endeared him to the boys in the trenches and any time that he shies his hat into a contest both the leaders and rank and file become active in his behalf. Before entering the Senate he served a term in the House of Representatives, cutting his eye teeth in the game of parliamentary politics at the State Capitol. Senator Knight is a member of the firm of Henry Knight & Son, live stock commission merchants, and an officer in the Louisville Provision Company. Laboring men and the working classes in general appreciate the fight he made in behalf of the workmen's compensation bill, which is now a law.

GEM OF THE SEA.

The month of March is peculiarly Ireland's month. The greatest festival from a civic viewpoint in all the world is the seventeenth. St. Patrick's day. With every Celt the prayer is that the Old Land may be free, but when and how still remain to be answered. It may not be inappropriate to quote in part the prophecy of St. Malachy as he lay dying in the arms of St. Bernard (1143):

"Be of good heart. The church of God in Ireland shall never fail. With terrible discipline long shall she be purified. But afterwards far and wide shall her magnificence shine forth in cloudless glory. And, oh, Ireland, do thou lift up thy head. The day shall come; a day of ages, a week of centuries shall be numbered unto thee. Then shall thy exceeding great merits have obtained mercy for thy terrible foe, yet so as through scourges as great and enduring. Thy enemies who are in thee shall be driven out and humbled and their names taken away. But in so much as thou art depressed in so much shalt thou be exalted and thy glory shall not pass away. There shall be peace in abundance within thy boundaries and beauty and strength in the defenses. It is enough, O Lord, the church in Ireland shall never fail, though long shall it be desired, my country shall one day stand forth in its might and be fresh in its beauty like the rose." God bless dear old Ireland.

BAPTIST TRIBUTE.

The following is taken from the Western Recorder, a Baptist publication: There is no other country in the world, except the Boers, as free from crime as is Ireland. The Irish had a rebellion, and seem to be on the brink of a renewal, but they do not hold rebellion against England as a crime any more than of Southern people admitted that they were guilty of crime in fighting for the South. It is nothing unusual for a court in Ireland to find no one to try when the session opens. This writer, in 1872, heard the historian Froide say he had lived twenty years in what was called the worst part of Ireland; he was known to be an Englishman; he was familiar with all Ireland, and he did not believe there was a dishonest man nor an impure woman in all Ireland.

PRIESTS NEEDED ABROAD.

The war in Europe has left the Catholic church in France, Italy and Ireland without a sufficient number of candidates to train for the priesthood. The drain upon the young men of these countries has been so great that priests in New York have been asked to confer with the youth of their congregations in the hope that some of them may be willing to take orders and fill the demand. It is said that the number of priests absent with the armies and the number of deaths have so depleted the clergy that many churches in Europe have had to be closed.

LARGEST FOREIGN ELEMENT.

The last Massachusetts State census, made public Saturday, indicates a striking change in the racial character of the foreign-born population. Natives of non-English speaking countries increased 27.6 per cent. during the period of 1905-1915, while those of English-speaking lands decreased 1.2 per cent.

Why?

BECAUSE—IT'S STRAIGHT, PURE AND UNADULTERATED.

BECAUSE—IT HAS THE BODY, MELLOWNESS, FLAVOR AND TASTE TO PLEASE THE PALATE.

BECAUSE—USED IN MODERATION, IT RELIEVES FATIGUE, STIMULATES THE BODY AND AIDS DIGESTION.

IF THE ABOVE REASONS ARE NOT CONCLUSIVE, BUY A BOTTLE AND BE CONVINCED THAT THERE IS NO WHISKY DISTILLED SUPERIOR TO KENTUCKY TAVERN.

The relation between native-born and foreign-born remains virtually the same, the census figures showing that 68.8 per cent. of the population claiming this country as the land of their birth. Natives of Ireland still constitute the largest single element of the foreign-born population.

DEAD OF YEAR.

The names of many prominent prelates, priests and laymen will be found on the death roll of 1916. Among them are the names of eight Bishops of the church as follows:

Scannell, Richard, Bishop of Omaha, Neb., aged seventy-one, died in January.

Doran, Thomas F., Auxiliary Bishop of Providence, R. I., sixty-six, in January.

Shanahan, J. W., Bishop of Harrisburg, Pa., sixty-one, February 19.

Brennan, Thomas, Bishop of Dallas, Texas, died in Rome in month of March.

O'Connell, Soter, Ruler of Philadelphia, Pa., in March.

Northrup, Henry P., Bishop of Charleston, S. C., seventy-four, in June.

Spalding, John Lancaster, formerly Bishop of Peoria, Ill., and titular Archbishop of Seppolis, August 25.

Richter, Henry J., Bishop of Grand Rapids, Mich., seventy-six, December 26.

Prominent among the dead of the Catholic laity are:

Dr. John B. Murphy, distinguished surgeon, Chicago.

Dr. Eugene W. Hilgard, scientist, University of California.

Miss Angeline De Lande, convert and poet.

Herman Ridder, editor of the Staats-Zeitung, New York City.

Thomas M. Mulry, President of the St. Vincent de Paul Society, New York City.

Elizabeth Jenkins, Catholic benefactress, Baltimore.

Dr. Charles G. Herbermann, editor-in-chief of the Catholic Encyclopedia, New York City.

Miss Molly Elliott Sewell, authoress, Washington, D. C.

HEALTH RECORD.

St. John's Home, an orphanage conducted in Brooklyn by the Sisters of St. Joseph, is believed to be the healthiest spot in the United States. There have been only two deaths among 1,200 inmates in two years, and both these have been from accidents.

GOOD BUSINESS ONLY.

"Are you a philanthropist, sir?" asked an old gentleman of a young man who was distributing a quantity of butter-scotch to some children. "Am I a what?" said the young man; "a philanthropist? No, sir, I am a dentist!"

F. HUNTER BURKE.

F. Hunter Burke has announced himself as a candidate for Prosecuting Attorney of the Police Court, subject to the action of the Democratic party at the primary Saturday, August 7. Mr. Burke is conducting his canvass as a representative of no faction and appeals for the support of all classes of the Democracy. He has been identified with local Democracy for many years and has ever been ready to lend his services in aid of the ticket in city, State and national elections as a ward organizer and campaign orator. On the stump Mr. Burke makes a pleasing impression and is well known throughout the district as a clear and forcible speaker.

ST. PATRICK.

Seven cities claimed Homer, but to St. Patrick, whose feast day will be celebrated on March 17, have been assigned Roman, Gallic, Scottish, British and Celtic origin. Years ago a witty rabbi at a dinner on St. Patrick's day made an ingenious attempt to prove that the Irish race were the lost tribe of Israel. The appeal of Patrick as a saint is to all nations because of his manly and militant sanctity. There was nothing namby-pamby about his practices and professions of Christianity and his entire life from boyhood, when he was sold into bondage by the Picts, was a career full of soul-stirring adventure, sorrows, hardships and eventful triumph through faith and works. Patrick was just the stripe of man to make an instant appeal to a proud, hardy and quick-witted people like the Irish, for in addition to his life filled with hazards and suffering, the great missionary was a gentleman, and there is no race under the sun quicker in its appreciation of true gentility. He slew no dragons, but he braved the Druidical priests in their groves, routed them and their dark mysteries and preached a kinderlier creed with such earnest eloquence and fire that he swept an emotional people off their feet in a fervor of zeal for the new dispensation of love sealed by the suffering and death of a crucified Christ, so that their faith has endured ever since through centuries of persecution and suffering that have no parallel in history. Out of Patrick's great conquest of the Irish—the first and only one in their history, for conquest after all can be only of the heart and spirit of a people—have grown a wealth of splendid legend and history. Small wonder then that on the seventeenth of March the shamrock, whereby Patrick illustrated to his Irish hearers the mystery of the trine God, is the color everyone wears.

WHAT WE NEED.

What we need is not more Catholic newspapers, but more readers of Catholic newspapers. The Catholic press of the United States would be a powerful and a sufficiently powerful mold of public opinion if the number of subscribers were increased tenfold. As long as the great majority of Catholics are apathetic on the question of Catholic newspapers we are bound to have periodic outbursts of ignorant bigotry that could be met and dissolved by a more militant and wide-awake activity on the part of Catholics themselves. It is the well-wishers of the Catholic press and the resolution makers would see to it that their names were inscribed on the mailing lists of some Catholic newspaper. The church would enjoy a new era of progress and the sphere of her influence would be immeasurably extended.—Catholic Bulletin.

IRISH TAG DAY.

St. Patrick's day is to be Irish tag day in Chicago this year. A bevy of pretty Irish colleens will assist in tagging in every part of the city. Miss Rhea Devlin will act as captain of a group of taggers in the loop and will be assisted by Mrs. Josephine McGarry Callen. The Board of Trade members have issued a special invitation to the Irish relief fund for Irish sufferers from the European war, which is to benefit by the receipts, to send the prettiest and the wittiest girls there, and they have chosen Mrs. Bernard J. Mahoney to head a delegation.

AGAINST CATARRH.

Any constitutional exercise which improves the circulation and makes the body resistant helps to protect one from catarrh. This is particularly true of all breathing exercises because the effects are beneficial locally as well as constitutionally, says one of the best known physical culture teachers in New York. So let us teach our children the value of correct and deep breathing, and in doing so we improve our own health and thereby impart cheerfulness and happiness to our home.
